Planners Deny River Road Subdivision

By Susan K. O'Neill

Tuesday night, the Andover Planning Board voted its disapproval of definitive plans for the controversial "Cobblestone Lane" subdivision, proposed for a location off River Road. As a reason for its action on the plans—which had appeared before the board four times previously in separate preliminary or definitive submissions—the planners cited a proposed street layout that did not provide for a "livable subdivision."

In its previous submissions, the plans had been turned down—or withdrawn—because the board and staff had perceived problems with the subdivision's drainage patterns, grading, water tables or land use intensity. The developers, Coolidge Construction Company of North Andover, had changed lot configurations and, at one point, reduced the number of lots on the 15-acre parcel from eight to its present seven.

At its last public hearing in May, the board had criticized the latest definitive plans as "just meeting minimal standards." Members had singled out a lot in which the front, buildable section was separated from the back by wetlands, which could be accessible in wet seasons by a footbridge—which could not be built without permission from the Conservation Commission. Also on the board's list of complaints were a shared driveway between two lots, instances in which slope easements for septic systems would have to be borne by neighboring lots, and the compression of one lot into a long, narrow configuration by the placement of the road.

Tuesday night's vote followed a lengthy discussion, in which members debated their alternatives as a volunteer board faced with plans that they didn't like, but which fulfilled the letter of the town's subdivision bylaws. "Just about all the rules and regulations you want are met here," said Chairman Michael Houghton. The problem is, he said, that the plans had been designed to satisfy those rules and regulations—not to address the effect of the development upon the limits of the land itself.

"Why would we as a planning board stamp approval on this if we don't like it?" he asked.

Board member Paul Curley reminded other members that "the developers are fully aware of the staff's concerns on this plan." The staff has made it clear, he said, that it would prefer a reduction in the lot number to six.

At this, Attorney Russell Bodnar, representing Coolidge Construction, reminded Curley that the developers had already dropped a lot from the previous plans. At the board suggestion that two of the proposed lots "do not meet the test of livability", Bodnar said, "It is livable; it is usable. As long as there is sufficient living space, the only test it might not meet would be the marketability of it." That, concluded Bodnar, would be the developer's problem.

Attorney John McGarry, also representing Coolidge Construction, reviewed the company's history of

Glass Pickup To Be At Town Hall

Andover's Saturday, June 21, glass drive will be held in the new town hall parking lot, a new location for the monthly collections which began a year ago. The lot may be entered from Bartlet Street next to the park at the corner of Bartlet and Chestnut Streets. Volunteers from Andover Recycling, Inc. will help participants unload their cars and place glass in the proper side of the partitioned bin from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. As always, clear glass is to be kept separate from green in clearly marked sides of the collecting container.

On the same weekend as the glass drive, Andover Recycling, Inc. will operate a booth in the town's Sidewalk Bazaar. Information on products made from recycled materials will be available along with a recycled newspaper hat craft corner and a video on hazardous waste. Andover's Board of Health will share space at the booth with information on a hazardous waste disposal day planned for this fall.

MISSION TRADERS ADDS 36TH COUNTRY Collector Quality Baskets from Zululand

The good news is that after only 9 months in business, Mission Traders imports craft and gift items from 36 different countries. The product selection is colorful and diverse but so are the conditions under which certain products are made. For basket weavers in Zululand, South Africa, that is the bad news.

"The conflict in South Africa has been more than political headlines to the women of Zululand," remarks Bart Schick owner of Mission Traders. "While we read about the rioting, they live with the daily realities of violence, loss of husbands, loss of jobs. That is tragic enough."

The loss of steady employment, however, means more than reduced income and hungry children. The inability to work has threatened part of the basket weaving community. On one level, no work means no product. No product means no income. On a totally different level, no product may mean that the ability to weave is forgotten completely.

Solution

In a response to this condition, the Lutheran church in South Africa helped form a cooperative that provides materials and encouragement to the women to weave their baskets and then marketing assistance to sell them once they are finished. It is from this cooperative that Mission Traders has purchased extraordinary examples of African baskets, uniquely woven, balanced in shape and design, and suitable for the collector as well as those who appreciate an unusual gift.

"We forget in the age of all our encyclopedias, computer memory banks, and how-to pamphlets that many people in our world are totally illiterate. For example, the women of Zululand weave baskets because they were taught by their mothers who were taught by their mothers before." The art is handed down verbally from generation to generation; nothing is written. If there is an interruption in that process, then the art dies off and there are no baskets.

No Major Problem?

Schick goes on to ask: "So what if there are no baskets from South Africa?

There are millions from the rest of the world so what is the problem?" His answer to his own question: "The problem is more than the loss of the art or the loss of the tradition. The heart of the concern is the loss of the ability to earn an income and to have the self respect that comes from using one's inbred skills. With the skills there is hope. Without them the cycle of poverty continues. That is the fundamental problem."

Buying trips are not all work! The Schicks are shown here at play in Haiti with the children at the hospital to which profits from Mission Traders are sent.

DEAF CHILDREN WEAVE BASKETS

Unless heavy rains wash out the dirt foot path, every Wednesday Lucien walks four hours to work. He is barefoot and has only a straw bag over his shoulder. Lucien stays for three days but carries one shirt. That is all he has. He is deaf and teaches deaf children how to weave baskets.

The young students are in their teens and study at the Haitian School for Deaf Children at kilometer 14 on the road to the north out of Port-au-Prince. They sit in a circle around Lucien. There is no conversation as all instructions are in sign language. Actually most of the students learn by watching. All a visitor hears are the rustling of the breeze through the classroom, the shuffling of the reeds being tied into place on the basket and the clipping of the finishing shears.

But in the silence great things are happening. The boys are becoming self sufficient. Not only do they learn a skill with which to earn a living, they develop self respect. They "speak" with their hands, copying their teacher's designs for picnic baskets. Their reward? A nod and approving handshake from their teacher and a smile of acceptance from the customer buying for Mission Traders.

RAFFLE TO BENEFIT

MALNUTRITION CENTER IN HAITI

Proceeds from a raffle of a striking ceramic figure of a Navajo woman with her lamb will go to help establish a malnutrition center in Fond des Blanc, Haiti. The Center will open in the Fall of 1986 and will treat children in the surrounding countryside.

The statue was chosen because since the 1800's, the wealth of the Navajo People has been measured by the size of their flocks. The Navajo woman is traditionally the owner of the sheep and their prime caretaker. The statue represents symbolically the link between women and food in all cultures.

Only 200 tickets will be sold at $5.00 each. They are available only at Mission Traders.

GRADUATION AND WEDDING GIFTS FROM AROUND THE WORLD

Making a choice from over 500 items for a wedding or graduation gift might be difficult but it is always fun at Mission Traders. The gift store in Andover mainly purchases a wide range of handmade items from self-help projects and artisan cooperatives in the Third World.

The selection includes: picture frames from Peru and India; weavings from Guatemala, Haiti and Peru; wooden carvings from Haiti, Ecuador, India and the West Bank; mirrors hand painted in Peru; rugs and decorator pillows woven in Mexico; jewelry from around the world.

Profits from the sale of these items are returned to a Children's Hospital in Haiti and a knitting cooperative in Peru.

BEACH COVER-UPS PROVIDE EMPLOYMENT IN HAITI

Not many years ago, the people in Fermath, Haiti (about an hour outside of Port-au-Prince) had no potable drinking water and no predictable supply of water for crop irrigation. The "pool" where they would bathe, wash clothes and water the animals was created by a pile of rocks in the stream. Today, they make fashionable beachwear cover-ups worn at beaches and private pools in Massachusetts. How did this happen?

The story is typical of the type of products featured at Mission Traders in Andover, one that combines the craft skills of the local people with the product needs of a growing gift shop.

Sunburnt Beginning

The process started during a mission trip to Haiti. Perhaps it shouldn't be said that even "missionaries" like to swim and take time at the beach to recoup. Perhaps it shouldn't be said that one male member of the team had to borrow his wife's beach shirt because he got too sunburnt. (It definitely shouldn't be told that it fit...but then that's a different story!.) If it weren't told, however, you wouldn't know the beginning of the story.

Haitian women embroider beach cover-ups for Mission Traders at home in the mountains outside Port-au-Prince.

On a subsequent buying trip to Haiti in September last year, the Schicks took the same shirt to the Mountain Maid Self Help Program in Fermath where they discussed the possibility of having the women cut, sew and embroider the shirt with various designs. Agreement was reached to sample a few: colorful designs of flowers, tropical birds, and other patterns were chosen; and the finished products were tested at Mission Traders.

Shirts Embroidered At Home

Once the shirts were made at the cooperative, women from the surrounding hillsides walk in to pick up the shirts and embroidery yarn. Most of the embroidery is done at home while the women watch children, work in the garden or tend to the animals. When finished, the women return to Mountain Maid where their work is inspected and where they get paid for their labor. The benefit to the women is that they do not need to buy the materials in order to make money. The cooperative supplies them from their material bank.

Quality Control Works

Not every step in the process went smoothly. One woman who had never seen the ocean, let alone a sail boat, had embroidered a magnificent boat with billowing spinnaker and sparkling water. The only problem was she had made the boat upside down so all her work had to be cut out! Translating a product idea through many steps involving over 200 women living in the beautiful, but impoverished mountains of Haiti, can be difficult.

Now the finished cotton beach and pool cover-ups are available for sale at Mission Traders.

FRANCHISE OPPORTUNITIES

Mission Traders announced recently that because of frequent inquiries it had established a franchise program to open Mission Traders outlets in other cities.

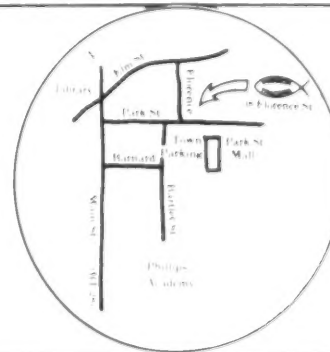

The program is designed to allow other individuals who share the same business philosophy to own their own business yet help others at the same time.

The franchise program calls for the franchise to operate 6 days per week in a businesslike fashion and for the owner to return a percentage of net sales to the fund that Mission Traders sends back to various cooperatives and medical programs.

In return, Mission Traders will provide all the importing, warehousing, merchandising, marketing, sales training and on-going consulting support. There is a franchise fee.

Interested persons should contact Mission Traders for further information.

Country Kitchens To Be Topic

By Virginia Lopez Begg

Country kitchens are the theme of the final morning coffee of the season at the Andover Historical Society on Tuesday, June 17, at 9:30 a.m. The public is invited.

With special emphasis on strawberry time, committee members will discuss old-time recipes. The audience will be treated to recipe booklets compiled by Ruth Sherwood. Items from the Andover Historical Society's barn collection will also be featured.

Members of the audience will be invited to reminisce or imagine country cooking in the "good old days." They will learn about progress made in matters culinary, as well as some things that have regrettably been lost.

The morning coffee committee includes Barbara Loomer, Reta Buchan, Bernice Haggerty, Ruth Sharpe, Ruth Sherwood and Marge Snell.

The Andover Historical Society is a non-profit, educational institution open to members and the public. For information on open hours, exhibitions, tours, social events and membership, call the society office Monday through Friday, between 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Dissette Named To Group

Jeannie Ford Dissette, director of admissions at Phillips Academy in Andover, has been named to the committee on boarding schools of the National Association of Independent Schools (NAIS) and the Secondary School Admission Test Board (SSATB).

The committee oversees the work of the boarding schools program in developing public awareness of the educational opportunities offered by 230 independent boarding schools located across the nation.

Dissette earned her bachelor's and master's degrees in history at the University of Pennsylvania. She is completing work for a doctoral degree, also from Penn. Dissette worked for several years in administration at the university, including serving in the post of associate dean for undergraduate admissions. She left Penn last summer to take her current position at Phillips Academy, a coeducational boarding and day school for 1,000 students in grades 9-12.

Dissette has been active in the National Association of College Admissions Counselors and has taught a summer institute for ten years sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association of College Admissions Counselors. A native of Wayne, Penn., she lives in Andover.

NAIS, a voluntary membership organization of more than 1,000 member schools and associations in the U.S. and abroad, is the national institutional advocate for independent precollegiate education. It represents 342,000 students, 34,000 teachers and 5,000 administrators. Independent schools are non-profit, tax-exempt organizations maintaining fiscal independence from tax or church monies. They practice non-discrimination, are approved by a recognized evaluation process and are independently governed by boards of trustees.

ABC Achievers Head For College After Andover High

By Susan K. O'Neill

They are high achievers, outstanding in the classroom and in sports. Three big-city women, mature beyond their 16 or 17 years, they have all secured berths for the coming fall in reputable colleges.

As new graduates of Andover High School—and of the national A Better Chance (A.B.C.) program, which channels talented inner-city minority students into college-oriented suburban schools—Jeannette Molina, Phyllis Sheriff and Kelly Abercrombie have much in common. To those who know them, however, or to those who take a closer look behind the similarities, it is obvious that each of these young individuals is very much her own woman.

"I can't quit at anything I do...Quitting, even if I don't like it, bothers me." Jeannette Molina wanted to get away from home. She needed air; her home in Queens, N.Y., was filled with people and shadowed by the memories of a family tragedy. "I wanted so much to get out," she remembers. "I had a terrible attitude; my personality was going downhill."

School was easy for her, she says—so much so, in fact, that she was able to come to Andover High School from her eighth grade.

Andover was not Jeannette's first choice within the A.B.C. program. Initially, she tried for a scholarship to Phillips Academy. "Nothing went right for me when I applied to Phillips," she says. At the interview, especially, she felt that she did badly. Her application was turned down.

When she received notification that she had been accepted by Andover High School, she says, "I said 'no'—I'd gone through such a depression about the Phillips rejection..."

Jeannette's sister took her aside and gave her a "pep talk," and she reconsidered. She called the national A.B.C. office in Boston and accepted the placement. "It seemed like a dream," she says. "There was no official notice or anything."

That fall, Jeannette arrived in Andover—a "fairy tale land; the grass was so pretty, the trees so green"—and moved into the A.B.C. house at 134 Main Street.

Philosophically and academically, her adjustment was not difficult, she maintains. She considered the discipline in her new house reasonable; and, being an organized person, she was comfortable with the set study hours because she had lived with her own study routine at home for years.

Socially, that first year, Jeannette found herself a "new kid in town." She says that she developed no close ties, and had no relationships beyond those she formed among the other nine students in the house.

For her first two terms, Jeannette barely made house honors—a 2.25 grade point average with no grade below a "C." Every term, her grades improved: "I set a goal for myself," she recalls. "Next term, I'm going to get a 3.5, etc."

New graduates, Jeannette Molina, Kelly Abercrombie and Phyllis Sheriff

She met her goal; ironically, her grades changed her social life. Since, after two "honors" terms, students in the A.B.C. house may be excused from the scheduled study hours, Jeannette found herself with time on her hands and a house full of studying peers.

So, in her Junior year, Jeannette stepped out into a wider circle of friends. She even began dating a fellow Andover High School student from "outside."

Jeannette is now on her way to Connecticut College. She graduated with honors last Wednesday from the school to which she brought more than her presence. She has been a National Honor Society member, chairwoman of the Regional Student Advisory Council, and captain of the varsity volleyball team; she has also participated in such other activities as Students Against Driving Drunk, the pep club, winter and spring track. And—in her "spare time"—she has worked part-time downtown at The Purple Door.

"My philosophy. Hm. 'When the going gets tough—' Nah. 'You can, if you think yearbook. 'There's nothing so bad as a good excuse—and the better the excuse, the worse it is.' I'm the biggest procrastinator on the face of this universe. And I've allllways got a good excuse."

Phyllis Sheriff laughs now, when she admits that she spent her first year in Andover "always wondering whether I was going to stay or going to leave."

Phyllis laughs a lot; the deep dimples in her cheeks get a steady workout as she talks. About how, in the Bronx, N.Y., "I didn't have to work as hard in school—for me, getting 'A's' was easy." About how coming to Andover made for a tough adjustment. "My first time here," she says, shaking her head, "I didn't do so well."

Phyllis learned about A.B.C. indirectly. Her father owns a butcher shop in Manhattan; one day, when her mother was in the store, she met a Barnard College student who had gone through the program.

Barbara Sheriff pressed her daughter to apply to A.B.C., and Phyllis did.

As a result, three years ago, she found herself in Andover.

"My first statement when I got to the high school was that I'd never been surrounded by so many white people before," recalls Phyllis. The color shock she didn't feel that her race put her at a disadvantage.

Academically, however, the road was somewhat rockier.

In her junior year, she fell into house academic probation—which means carrying an average below 2.8 (2.6 for sophomores) or earning a grade below "C". "It didn't look like I would make it the second term; I was really losing interest in it," she says.

With the help and encouragement of her host parents—community members who provide a surrogate home for A.B.C. students to whom they are assigned—Phyllis buckled down to her books. "I made it by the skin of my teeth," she now laughs.

She also joined the volleyball team. In her junior year, she managed the softball team; as a senior, she took up winter track. Two years ago, after helping to stage some fancy ropework at a town-wide American Heart Association "Jump Rope For Heart" event, she and five of her fellow A.B.C. members formed the house's "double dutch" team. Calling themselves "The Double Dimensions", they have staged demonstrations of their two-rope jumping

Singers Workshop Scheduled

The Treble Chorus of New England announces that the tenth annual Singers' Workshop will be held at South Church in Andover August 11-15. Summer home of the regional Treble Chorus of New England, the workshop welcomes musically-talented boys and girls ages 6-16. The workshop will meet daily from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., culminating in a concert on Saturday evening, Aug. 16.

Participants in the Singers' Workshop may elect to audition for the Treble Chorus of New England 1986-87 concert season. Recent performance seasons have included concerts at Hammond Castle in Gloucester and an American premier of a newly-discovered "Gloria" of Vivaldi in addition to an original "Pops" called "Pirates," based on Gilbert and Sullivan. Recent concerts have been given at Phillips Academy in Andover, a television appearance on Channel 5, a 30s and 40s performance and a spring Brahms and Britten concert. The Treble Chorus collaborated with Boston Musica Viva and M.I.T. Advanced Center for Visual Studies on May 30, 1984, to present the American premier of Paul Earls' contemporary opera "Icarus." It featured a laser display, computer-synthesized music, giant inflatable sculpture and chamber ensemble, all under the direction of Richard Pittman. Treble Chorus performed with New England Conservatory Preparatory Orchestra in November 1985 for their Collins Center debut and have been invited to join Governor Dukakis for the State House Christmas tree lighting and the Japanese Festival. Recently chorus members performed "La Boheme" with the Merrimack Lyric Opera Company of Lowell.

Musically-talented young people who enjoy choral and solo singing and would like an exciting music experience in the summer should consider attending Singers' Workshop. Classes will be offered in voice, theory, music appreciation and classical choral repertoire. Spaces are limited. Make an appointment with Jeanne Thomases, Reading, choir manager.

West Elementary Entrepreneurs

The West Elementary third graders recently participated in a week-long learning module on economics, produced by the third grade teachers in conjunction with the Andover Industry/Business/Community/Education Collaborative. Using an Economics computer program entitled "The Lemonade Stand," the students set up their own businesses, making lemonade and popcorn and marketing them to the younger grades at a program held on Friday. Students To Make Video Third, fourth and fifth grade students in Stepping Out, a Kaleidoscope dance course offered this summer, will make their own dance video with assistance from Rollins CableVision.

The week-long dance program, held July 28-August 1 from 12 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. daily at West Elementary School, Andover, is taught by Jean Traxler of Brookline. Traxler, a professional dancer and director of the Peanut Butter & Jelly professional dance company, will lead the class in warm-ups, movement exercises, improvisations and original dances. Students will make costumes and backdrops for a concluding performance. The dance video will be shown as part of the performance on the last day of class.

There are still several openings in this class. Interested parties should contact the director, Janis Baron, or obtain a brochure from the D.C.S. office, school offices, library or by writing Kaleidoscope, Box 506, Andover, MA 01810.

Kaleidoscope is a non-profit, educational and cultural program for children offered in cooperation with the Andover Department of Community Services.

Exhibit Features "The Mill As Art"

This drawing of the Davis & Furber mill in North Andover is one of 81 watercolors and drawings of 19th-century New England textile mills by Marian Cannon Schlesinger that will be exhibited in "Schlesinger/Millwork: The Mill as Art" at the Museum of American Textile History in North Andover June 29-December 14.

Watercolors and drawings of 19th-century New England textile mills by Marian Cannon Schlesinger will be exhibited in "Schlesinger/Millwork: The Mill as Art," opening Sunday, June 29, at the Museum of American Textile History, 800 Massachusetts Avenue, North Andover.

The 81 works feature mill buildings and settings along the Merrimack River, Connecticut River and several smaller rivers and streams. Mills in 21 New Hampshire cities and towns, and six Massachusetts locations are represented in the exhibit, which spans 15 years in the artist's career.

"Textile mills and the textile industry were the backbone of the economic life of New England throughout the 19th century," says Schlesinger. "The mills' history had far-reaching effects on architecture, city planning, social mores and community organization."

"Some 15 years ago I set myself a project: to search out and record examples of this particularly significant phase of our architectural heritage."

Schlesinger is a landscape and portrait painter, author and illustrator of several children's books, contributor to newspapers and magazines and author and illustrator of a memoir, "Snatched From Oblivion."

Raised in Cambridge, the daughter of an early feminist and an eminent professor of physiology, she traveled each year with her family to their summer home in Franklin, N.H.

"Our route north ran through the mill cities of Lawrence and Lowell and along the Merrimack beside the great Amoskeag Mills in Manchester," she says. "I have seen these enormous buildings when they were bustling, productive establishments."

She spent a year studying art in China after her graduation from Radcliffe College in 1934. Traveling widely throughout her life, she always carried her paintbox and watercolor block, pursuing her interest in architectural drawing.

A retrospective of her travel drawings was held at the Boston Public Library in 1971. Her paintings have been exhibited in Cambridge, Washington, D.C., and Paris, while her portraits, primarily of children, are privately owned throughout the world.

"It was not until a decade and a half ago that I began to look at these mills with a new eye," says Schlesinger.

Auditing a course at Harvard on the American landscape, she attended several lectures on the evolution of the 19th-century New England textile mill that emphasized the mills' profound significance as milestones in the development of the Industrial Revolution in this country.

"I began to look at these mills that I had known all my life with new appreciation," says Schlesinger. "I had been interested in architectural drawing for many years and it occurred to me that it might be a worthwhile project to do a series of watercolors and wash drawings of some of these fine buildings."

Calling the project "a labor of love," she captured these mills in her art, often before they were irretrievably destroyed by the wrecker's ball.

Some of Schlesinger's drawings and watercolors of 19th-century New England textile mills were exhibited in 1973 at the Octagon House of the American Institute of Architects in Washington, D.C., at the Museum of Science in Boston in 1976 and in several small shows in New Hampshire.

"Schlesinger/Millwork: The Mill as Art," on display through December 14, represents the

Healthcare Center To Open In Andover

The Suburban Healthcare Center is opening Monday, June 23, at 15 Stevens St., Andover, according to William Casper of LGH Health Enterprises. Three established area physicians will participate in this unique medical practice.

Matthew Cushing, Jr., M.D., medical director of the center, Edward J. Broadus, M.D. and Margaret Galaburda, M.D., will be responsible for all aspects of medical services.

In addition to providing care for their private patients, the physicians plan to offer walk-in primary and immediate care. Casper explains, "This unique program allows a solo practice physician to maintain the traditional doctor-patient relationship while also providing the no-appointment, convenience care which the public is seeking."

Cushing sees even further advantages to the patient. "We plan to devote our energies to serving our patients in a truly progressive way—with an emphasis on health education and preventive medicine. Practicing in this manner, we can focus on keeping our patients healthy by providing a depth of services not usually available in a solo practice."

The new facility is centrally located in the historic Marland Mills building and offers a full complement of services supported by on-site laboratory and radiology facilities.

The center will be open daily, 365 days a year, from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sundays and holidays. Most major health insurance plans will be accepted.

Last Friday, June 6, the school held the ninth grade social between 7:15 p.m. and 11:15 p.m. A buffet-style dinner was served in the cafeteria and then the students went to the gym to dance to records spun by a deejay. All day Friday many students and teachers worked hard decorating the gym and cafeteria, using the theme of "Heaven" as a guideline. During the evening, a king and queen of the dance were selected. The king and queen, Marcus Rose and Apryl Williams, danced to "the Greatest Love of All" by Whitney Houston, along with runners-up for these positions. The social was a great success.

There was a meeting for all SADD junior members in West Junior High School on Monday, June 9. A man talked about drug counseling and the physical and mental affects of drug abuse. He did this through diagrams and humorous stories and related his message very well.

Ninth graders moved up to the high school on Tuesday, June 10. They went to their school of next year for the day and visited the classes on their schedules for next year. Sixth graders came to the junior high school for their orientation of seventh grade on the same day.

AFS Youth Go Abroad

Heading overseas for the summer are these Andover AFS students. In left photo, from left, Wendy Blais and Barbara Wahr will go to Thailand, Mindy Porter will be in the United Kingdom and David Stark will study in Brazil. At right, David Grace prepares for a full year of study in Italy.

The Andover branch of the American Field Service recently held its annual end-of-the-year picnic and said goodbye to five Andover youths who will leave soon for foreign countries. President Anne Wiehe, on behalf of all the club members, presented a gift and bid farewell to Karin Bietler, AFS foreign exchange student from Vienna, Austria.

Barbara Wahr, daughter of David and Sue Wahr, Seneca Circle, will be the first to leave for her overseas assignment. She was president of the high school AFS club and this year she and her family hosted Karin. Barbara will go to Los Angeles for orientation, then to Bangkok, Thailand, where she will attend a university school and live with her Thai family of five throughout the summer.

David Stark, Wendy Blais and Mindy Porter are also on the summer program abroad. David, son of Tom and Sandy Stark, 10 Sherry Drive, will spend the summer in Fortaleza, Brazil. He will join a Brazilian family of one sister and three brothers and will attend school.

Wendy, a sophomore at Andover High School, will leave on June 20 for Haukadalur, Iceland, a small farming community in the county of Valisysla, about 200 km from the capital, Reykjavik. She will live with a very young family with two small children and their grandmother. Wendy is the daughter of Maurice and Deborah Blais, West Parish Drive.

Mindy will learn this week where she will be placed, somewhere in the United Kingdom. She will work on a special project with other AFS foreign students and will return at the end of summer. Mindy, daughter of Gerard and Lorraine Belanger, Pioneer Circle, will attend the orientation program at CW Post College as will all students leaving from the East Coast.

David, son of Kay and Wesley Grace, 19 Summer St., will participate in the full year Americans Abroad program. A sophomore at Andover High School, he will leave in late August for Italy. He has not learned his exact location yet, but he will attend school there while living with his Italian family.

As for the grades, Phyllis pulled herself up into house honors. She is now slated to go to Barnard College in the fall.

"Aim for the moon; if you miss, you'll fall among the stars."

Kelly Abercrombie, whose real first name is Jacqueline, carries herself straight and tall. She moves and looks like an athlete, which she is. She was a captain of the winter and spring track teams; she played varsity soccer.

Kelly came to Andover from a high-crime neighborhood in Newark, N.J., where she lived with her mother, her sister and a younger brother. "My mother nagged me about applying to A.B.C.," she says. "She was always trying to find someplace else for me to go but there (Newark)."

She went to a small school, with a total of approximately 600 students, where, she says, "It was kind of a joke after awhile—I was getting 'A's' without doing any homework whatsoever."

From her life of no homework, Kelly went to live at the A.B.C. house—with its study hours and disciplined time schedules. She was "a little mad" when she first met with the restrictions, she admits.

As far as the school itself, says Kelly, "The teaching methods were really different—academics were really stressed more up here...I never really got bad grades, but..." Kelly made house honors seven out of 12 semesters—but she also made house academic probation twice for carrying a "D".

Socially, Kelly claims that her adjustment to Andover was not difficult, although she has had her days of alternately loving and hating the place. "I consider myself a very flexible type of person," she says. She feels that her peers accept her for the person she really is—and cites the example of one classmate who once told her, "I know you're black, and I know you're in A.B.C., but when people hear your name, they don't think of Kelly the Black Girl."

What they do think of is a young woman with a wry grin and eyes that look as if their owner were capable of a good measure of mischief. An individual who gives the impression that she is sane in a crazy world—and that she finds her situation amusing. A survivor.

Kelly recently was accepted as a student at Holy Cross in Worcester. She is pleased; it was her first choice among several colleges. Her mother, too, is

Summer Programs At Library

With Sherlock as mascot this summer, some mysterious and intriguing activities will soon take place in the Children's Room at Memorial Hall Library, Andover. "Track Down a Mystery" is the theme for the library's summer reading program this year and all Andover youngsters are invited to participate by registering any time on or after June 23.

"Recreational reading during the summertime is an important way to retain and reinforce skills. For all children, it's a wonderful time to broaden and stimulate the creative imagination through involvement with books and reading, to discover new authors and areas of interest," according to Bridget Bennett, children's librarian.

The Children's Room will also offer preschool story hours, feature films, crafts and other special events, beginning the week of July 7. A brochure giving full details and times of all programs is now available.

pleased, she says: "She doesn't want me to be too close to home."

"I'm the child in the family that has to make it," she explains. Her mother, a seamstress, is not one to say, "Kelly, I'm proud of you," she says; instead, Kelly hears about herself from her mother's customers. "I would feel really, really bad if I let her down," she says.

Some exciting things to do are coming up. Feel like taking a cruise? It may not be "Love Boat," but, on July 10, you can take a leisurely trip to Provincetown and have time to browse through that charming place and just enjoy. Cost of the cruise is $24. You can join us at Bill Foster's at York Beach for an old-fashioned clam-bake on July 23. There will be lobster, corn and clams, and for those who prefer it, chicken instead of lobster. It will be a grand old time for everyone, but you had better sign up now. As always, numbers are somewhat limited and people are signed up on a first-come, first-serve basis. There will be a trip to the North Shore Music Theatre on July 30 for a performance of the "King &

I. The price of $26 includes luncheon.

The annual chicken barbecue at the Voke School will be held June 25. Tickets are on sale now at the senior center for $1 each and are restricted to Andover residents. This is always a popular event and tickets go fast. Stop by now and get yours so you won't be disappointed. The food is always good and the entertainment is good, too.

If you don't receive a copy of the Concil on Aging Newsletter by June 18, call the senior center at 470-3830 and they will see you fast. They are about to go into the mail to all Andover residents aged 60 or older and we do not want to leave you out.

In the newsletter, you will find details of the many courses and events scheduled for the center in the next few months. Registration day for the courses is Wednesday, June 18. There are many things you can learn about or to do. Brighten your horizon and learn something new. You'll be so glad you did.

Do you know someone, or are you, yourself, finding it difficult to stay at home alone while the rest of the family is gone all day? Do you know anything about the Adult Day Care program at the senior center? Transportation can be arranged to and from this special program. Planners cooperating with the town's planners and boards on the project. He noted that physical planner, Steve Colyer had given the plans his approval on a previous occasion.

He told the board that Coolidge had constructed other subdivisions in Andover; they had never tried to exploit the town's rules and regulations and had, in fact, made a number of concessions and changes in accordance with the wishes of town representatives. "Each separate department in town has looked at this," he said, "and has given it their approval."

Furthermore, said McGarry, "I think, if you look at this, you'll find there are seven lots on a 15-acre parcel." When finished, he said, the subdivision would be "one of the nicest in that part of town."

Board member Andrew Girdwood answered that he had been present at several meetings when the plans and their predecessors had been discussed. "The staff position has come through loud and clear to me," he said. "They're not at all happy with the configuration of some of the lots."

Steve Colyer added that it was true that he had given his approval of the plans at a previous meeting. "But there were about 26 conditions attached to that approval," he said. As for other town boards, he added, they were not "happy with the plans;" they had simply approved concepts presented as fitting within the legal guidelines.

The vote to disapprove was unanimous.

In separate actions, the board also:

- held a public hearing on the granting of a special permit for developers of the "Colonial Hill" subdivision in south Andover to truck approximately 7,000 cubic yards of ledge from the construction site to possible North Reading and Haverhill destinations. The board will vote on the matter at its next meeting on June 24.

- voted in favor of a developer's request to extend a bond on Belle Isle Way through July 21;

- set a bond figure for road work on Campanelli Drive at $151,183 for 30 days;

- tabled the setting of a bond figure for "Castle Green" subdivision off Fairway Drive;

- agreed to maintain a "Stop Work" order on Phase III of the "Olympic Village" subdivision to allow land stabilization efforts to catch up to construction;

- discussed proposed revisions in subdivision plan requirements. Included was a potential specification that definitive plans include the representation of structures on abutting lots that fall within 100 feet of the subdivision (or a distance specified by the board), and another which would mandate the submission of a separate soil erosion and sedimentation control plan with the definitive plan.

will be held on the common at 10 a.m. All booths will reopen for the day at 11 a.m. There will be a rock concert from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. The parade will begin at 2 p.m. Anyone wishing to be in the parade should meet at the Middle School at 1:30 p.m. This year's Grane Marshal is Edward W. To Host Prayer Service For Peace

The Free Christian Church Congregational, 31 Elm St., Andover, will hold an ecumenical prayer service for peace on Wednesday, June 18, at 8 p.m. The service will consist of scripture, liturgy, prayer and music and will be participatory.

The service will be led by Rev. Charles B. Mansfield, associate pastor, and lay leaders of the Free Church congregation. Coffee will be served following the service in the Parish Hall. All who are concerned to pray for peace are encouraged to attend.

The Andover Ecumenical Peace Group, involving clergy and laity from 11 Andover churches, including Phillips Academy, was formed in 1983 in response to the emerging dialogue within several local congregations on the topic of peace. Participating area churches have agreed to host one monthly ecumenical peace service and sponsor the Andover Peace Covenant, a personal covenant with one's God to pray for, study and discuss the issues of peace and join in support of all others working for peace.

A special copy of the Andover Peace Covenant will be available for members of the community who are not affiliated with one of the participating churches.

Summer Schedule

The Andover Baptist Church will begin its summer schedule on Sunday, June 15. Morning Worship will be held at 10 a.m. with child care provided. A coffee hour of refreshments and conversation will follow. Bible study and prayer on Wednesdays at 7 p.m. will be conducted by Rev. Phillips B. Henderson, interim minister.

Christian Scientists Gather In Boston

The Church of Christ, Scientist, convening its 91st Annual Meeting in Boston June 2, focused its attention on fulfilling the denomination's "mission of Christ-healing." The theme was traditional for Christian Scientists, but the meeting was not.

In a pre-taped video, the five-member board of directors stressed the church's founding purpose, dating from 1879, to commemorate the teachings and life of Christ Jesus "which should reinstate primitive Christianity and its lost element of healing."

Reports from Christian Scientists around the world were also delivered via video recordings.

A speaker from New York State described a healing "through prayer" of a toxic condition that doctors feared would endanger her unborn child; a woman from New England told of being lifted from destitution and suicidal tendencies to hope and new purpose; a man from the Philippines recounted his recovery from a serious gunshot wound. Asked what he felt was the most important element in the healing, he referred to forgiveness for the man who shot him, "Forgiveness helps a lot in healing because if you forgive, there is love. When you demonstrate love, you feel you are already in the kingdom of God and all is possible."

It was announced that Timothy A. MacDonald of Washington, D.C., and Marianne Bauer of Frankfurt am Main, Federal Republic of Germany, have been appointed to three-year terms as readers at The Mother Church. They read from the Scriptures and the denominational textbook. The new president of the Mother Church, Mrs. Jean K. Weida of Boston, brings to the one-year post long service to the denomination's healing and nursing activities.

Rev. Cornell Reappointed Pastor

Bishop George Bashoe, Episcopal leader for the Boston area of the United Methodist Church, has appointed the Rev. Gary S. Cornell to his sixth year as pastor of the Ballard Vale United Church. This action was taken during the reading of pastoral appointments at the close of the Southern New England Annual Conference meeting at Springfield College June 4-7. Mrs. Sandi Rehe was the lay member from the Ballardvale church along with Joyce and Willard

Robinson, also lay members of the conference.

The Rev. Gary S. Cornell will have "A Troubler in Trouble," based on the story of Elijah in the 14th chapter of the book of First Kings, as his preaching theme at this Sunday's 10:30 a.m. Service of the Word. The Summer Time Gang church school program meets at 10:30 a.m. Gifts of food to the Neighbors in Need ministry will be received and dedicated at this service.

Craft Fair

The ACC Craftfair will be held June 20-22 at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Friday; 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday; and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

More than 450 craftspeople from throughout the United States and 19 craft artists from France will exhibit their handmade contemporary objects. From traditional to post modern design, the ACC Craftfair exhibits the country's largest collection of fine quality contemporary collectables.

The emblem of The Christian and Missionary Alliance represents the fourfold Gospel of the sufficiency of Christ:

Christ our Savior - The cross represents salvation through the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, God's Son.

Christ our Sanctifier - The laver represents the cleansing from sin by the power of the indwelling Holy Spirit.

Christ our Healer - The pitcher of oil represents the healing power of the Gospel through the anointing of the Holy Spirit.

Christ our Coming King - The crown represents the return of Jesus Christ as King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

Come and meet the Alliance at our Open House on Sunday, June 22, 2:00-4:00 p.m., at the Sheraton-Rolling Green Inn.

More than 20 Greater Lawrence health care professionals will participate, offering free screening tests and public education materials. People who attend will have the opportunity to view exhibits, get counseling and discuss personal evaluations after testing. Admission is free.

Tests for diabetes, anemia, glaucoma, vision, hearing, blood pressure and oral cancer and others will be available. Counseling and medical referrals are scheduled regarding allergies, skin conditions and nutrition.

A Lifecycle Machine will be used to determine a person's stress and endurance during exercise.

Two blood chemistry tests will be available. One will screen 22 components including cholesterol, sodium, iron and potassium and requires a four-hour fast.

An additional test to determine a person's risk of coronary heart disease requires a 12-hour fast.

The person should drink only water, plain tea or black coffee after dinner the evening before the blood tests.

Damon Laboratoris will provide the blood testing services at a cost of $15 for the two segments of blood work.

Some organizations and professional groups participating will be American Cancer Society, American Heart Association, Bon Secours Hospital, Willows Racquet & Fitness Center, Greater Lawrence Home Health and Nursing Services and Lawrence General Hospital.

Healthfare '86 was planned to celebrate the first birthday of the Andover Walk-In Medical Center.

The annual event is sponsored by the Town of Andover and the Andover Walk-In Medical Center.

Drug Arrests May Reduce Source For Young People

By Susan K. O'Neill

The pink-beige duplex sits on Ridge Road, its bulk providing a "back wall" to the St. Augustine's Church auxiliary parking lot. It is quiet now; children from the neighborhood lounge on the front porch, watching the cars squeeze by through the narrow street that cuts between Brook Street and Lupine Road.

Last Friday night, however, Andover police found the right side of the house—4 Ridge St.—far from tranquil. At 10:30 p.m., armed with search warrants, they broke in through the front and back doors. Inside, according to Detective David Grant, they found a scattering of drug paraphernalia, money, and mirrors holding cocaine—a pay-as-you-go cocaine party peopled by 13 Andover teenagers and the apartment's resident, 34-year-old David Burke.

The police arrested Burke and charged him with possession of a controlled substance, class B, with intent to distribute, and conspiracy to violate drug laws.

They also arrested Michael Reed, 18, 8 Elm Court—who had been a neighbor of Burke not long ago, when the former also occupied an Elm Court apartment; Bruce Camire, 18, 64 High St.; and Derek Wells, 19, 20 Belknap Drive. They were charged with possession of cocaine.

A 16-year-old girl was held in protective custody. The other teenagers, whose ages ranged from 16 to 19, were released.

Police also confiscated drug paraphernalia and a quarter-ounce of cocaine, with a street value of $1,000.

The raid culminated an investigation that had begun five or six weeks earlier, said Grant. Acting upon complaints about suspected drug use and abuse at certain Andover schools, the police had, in cooperation with school officials, set up points of observation outside the schools. From the information they received, they traced supply lines to the Ridge Street house, which they put under surveillance.

Then came Friday's raid. "I think what's important here is that we have an adult here who was known to supply 20 to 25 Andover teenagers with cocaine and alcohol," said Grant. "It appears he was in it for the money. It was a serious thing going on down there; I think we've stopped it, or at least slowed it down."

Grant said that police believe that Burke had been supplying cocaine to young residents for months; the house had developed a reputation as a place in which the drug could not only be bought, but

Evaluation Needed

Last week the Andover school committee agreed that evaluation of the current gifted and talented program is needed.

A special committee of educators and administrators had looked at the program and has made some recommendations as to a future course.

The evaluation process is warranted in view of the current program serving only 104 children out of 1,022 in the system and costing $17,926.

It appears to be another case of the public school system being called upon to be all things to all people.

Such programs tend to become troublesome at times, since proud parents feel their children should be enrolled in them, when, in fact, they are not qualified.

Too, such programs tend to favor a few at the sacrifice of the overall system.

While the gifted and talented program as it now exists will be phased out and replaced with an interim plan, the evaluation committee, under the direction of Assistant Supt. Lois Haslam, seems to be headed in the right direction.

There will be involvement of parents along with educators and administrators in the decision-making process.

What seems to be evolving from suggested improvements in the program as outlined at last week's session is a program which will better suit the needs of the entire system rather than just a few.

True, there are some bright children who may need more challenge in their educational pursuit than others. But a public school system should not be catering to particular groups.

Rather, the system should be developing programs to meet the needs of all its members and the recommendations as outlined seemed to be aimed in that direction.

Committeeman Donald Robb put it best when he noted that, "This exact same program would be of benefit with hundreds more students...If these things are good, why are they only for certain students," concluding that rather than having a program identifying talent, there should be a program to develop talent.

Down The Years With The Townsman

75 Years Ago — June 1911

Considerable interest has been aroused in this vicinity through the announced appearance of Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Pawnee Bill's Far East at Lawrence, June 8. Col. Wm. F. Cody, the original and only "Buffalo Bill", travels with the big exhibition and positively appears at every performance, rain or shine, but this will be his farewell appearance.

While the water supply of Andover gives but slight indication of the drought that is manifest all around us, may we suggest that before Andover does feel the present dry spell through a lowering of the water supply, a few more streets be sprinkled with some satisfactory dust-layer as a conservation of natural resources timely and important for our own community.

Andover lost to Exeter in the annual debate which took place last Saturday evening in the Stone Chapel. The question was, "Resolved, That the Panama canal should be neutralized, not fortified."

Prince, the 17-year-old dog owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morse, and which has been a familiar figure around the square, died this week.

The work of remodeling the upper floor of Carter's Block by its recent purchaser, J.H. Champion, has resulted in the finishing of several extremely attractive suites and business offices.

50 Years Ago — June 1936

The new organ donated to St. Augustine's church by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Curran was dedicated on Sunday night. After the blessing of the organ a recital was presented, with some of the well-known organists from this section taking part.

One hundred chickens owned by Ralph Stevens of High street were killed Sunday night or early Monday morning, probably by a dog.

Scott H. Paradise of Phillips Academy has been chosen as the principal speaker for the Pynchard Alumni association annual banquet to be held next Friday evening in the town hall. Selectman J. Everett Collins will be the toastmaster.

Four Andover girls were included in the list of 29 students who were graduated from Abbot Academy at the annual exercises held Monday morning at the South church. One of the local girls, Miss Barbara Reinhart, was awarded the Honor A Saturday morning, the highest award given by the school. Miss Clara Macfarlane Holland graduated with the academic group, and Miss Sally Burns, Miss Lucy Hawkes and Miss Reinhart with the College Preparatory group.

Selectman J. Everett Collins will be the guest conductor at the annual federation night at Pops a week from tomorrow night. The members of the New England Federation of Men's Glee Clubs will attend, and will sing six numbers under the direction of Mr. Collins at intermission.

25 Years Ago — June 1961

Graduation exercises the morning of Monday, June 5, bring to a close the 132nd year of Abbot Academy.

Peter Beaven and Robert E. Westcott have been selected to attend the annual Boys State, held this year June 23 to July 1 at the University of Massachusetts.

Traditional commencement exercises at Andover High School tomorrow evening, at 8 p.m., will bring to a close the secondary schooling of some 192 members of the senior class.

Mrs. Joseph Myatt, 193 Highland Road, and Mrs. Irving E. Rogers of Sunset Rock Road, will open their gardens June 13 in the second of the Garden Club's "Garden Coffee".

Word has been received at the library that Miss Miriam Putnam, the librarian, is enjoying her vacation in England; from her planned itinerary there is little time to send more than a greeting, but she is capturing the beauties of the countryside in colored slides which will be part of her next travel talk later in the year.

Stand Under The Doorway

By Susan K. O'Neill

An outdoor graduation. Very New England. As I sit here, listening to Bill Dalton's homily, I feel as if somebody really should close the door. Voices behind me.

"Smith, mind you. I didn't think she was that smart..."

Where I grew up, we didn't hold graduations outside. Couldn't. Spring weather wasn't taken lightly in Indiana.

They held tornado drills in my grade school. File us down to the basement. Stand under a doorway if possible, kids.

"And then Catherine's the year after that, and Brenda's the year after that..."

There are 385 kids down there. Our class had 330. All huddled in the musty-smelling auditorium, called up one by one for our diplomas. A very serious business. In the midwest, education was everything.

Now it's a depressed area. Houses sell cheaply; people with B.A.s drive buses or leave town. Crazy.

"What a nice day. Remember the day WE graduated? Gawd!!"

My old high school is now "consolidated." I can't recognize it.

But at least I have a high school. They made Paul's into apartments for senior citizens or something.

"Look at that, wouldja. She looks like she got it done in a bad barber shop. Paid a fortune for it, too, I bet."

They all look so self-assured down there. We weren't. I didn't even like myself back then. I didn't like myself until I hit thirty or so. I wonder if they're bluffing?

"I mean, Smith! I should've seen it coming when they got the Mercedes."

Bill Dalton must've majored in "folksy." There he is, giving those kids the benefit of his experience. Will they listen? Should they listen?

Suppose I sell my novels and get famous some day, and my old high school asks me to speak. There I'd be, in that big consolidated auditorium, with a thousand strange faces staring up at me—there'd probably be a tornado going outside—what would I say?

"I'm so nervous, I'll probably take it with the lens cap on."

Give them the benefit of my experience? Get out of Indiana while you can, kids? Beware of Army recruiters? Don't think that what you start out to be is what you're going to be? Hang in there 'til you're 30—you'll like yourself?

Somehow, my experience doesn't seem to lend itself readily to advice.

"I have to go potty, Mommy. NOW!!"

No. I think I'd just try to make them laugh. Maybe then they'll realize that graduating from high school—or from college, even—isn't some heavy, solemn step toward the future.

"So—how do you think they're planning to pay for it?"

It's just another part of life in a world that's hurtling along on such an unpredictable orbit that any advice I'd give would be outmoded by the time they got around to taking it.

Except maybe for this:

If it really gets weird, kids, stand under the doorway.

Tribute to George Bruce

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

I simply cannot allow the recent death of George Bruce to go unnoticed only by the obituary published in the TOWNSMAN and other local newspapers, however, thoughtful that they may have been.

I did not know George as long or as well as many others did. Yet, I did know him and things about him. . . his always pleasant smile and cheerful "hello". . . his ever-so-careful driving. He took such good care of his home.

There was something of the pixie in George Bruce. His demeanor toward children was a model for all parents and especially grandparents.

He was so much more than the "Mayor of Ballardvale" although some of us would consider that a pretty lofty, albeit unofficial, position. He was a "townie," I think, and by any measure represented the very best that that word could possibly mean.

Above all other things, George Bruce was a consummately decent human being. He enriched my life. I am glad that I knew him.

Richard Bowen

Thanks

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

We would like to publicly thank a very special group of people, namely, the students at the Doherty Junior High in Andover. On Wednesday, June 4, 200 plus Doherty students volunteered to adopt a nursing home resident for the day, making possible the second annual Merrimack Valley L.I.F.E. Olympics (Living Is For The Elderly).

Students, who were paired on a one-to-one basis with residents from all over the Merrimack Valley, encouraged, supported and assisted their partners in a very special inter-generational experience. An event of this type would not have been possible without their efforts and the support of the administration.

Thanks for the great day, Doherty!

Grant conceded that it is highly unlikely that Burke might be the only person selling drugs in Andover. But, with the raid, he said, the Police Department was giving notice that "we have no intention of overlooking this sort of activity."

The investigation and subsequent raid were lead by Detective Sgt. John Houlihan. Besides Grant, detectives Kevin Winters, Kevin Burke, John Bernhardt and Joe Hastings participated, with the assistance of patrolmen Dick Aumais and Brian Pattullo, officers Barbara Connolly, Jack Milne, John Pathiakis, and Cecilia Blais, and Sgt. Arthur Ricci.

Mother Nature cancelled all In-Town League games last weekend which have been re-scheduled for a later date. Several travelling teams who have not completed the league schedule played on Sunday under sunny skies. Brief results of those games appear below:

Under 16 Division

Andover Raiders 0

Medford (Middx) 1

Andover Raiders 0 - Lowell 1

Andover Raiders 2 - Cambridge 1

The Raiders were forced into a defensive position by a stronger Medford lineup who made many good attempts to score throughout the scrappy contest. Good defense held them scoreless until minutes before the final whistle when a forward broke way and kicked in a high one over the keeper's outstretched hands to give Medford a 1-0 victory. BOW: The entire team for a great effort.

Lowell completed a penalty kick seconds before the midway point to take a 1-0 lead. The Raiders were denied many attempts to score in the second half by good defense. BOW: Goalkeeper Eric Hammond, David Miles and John Mattola.

After a scoreless first half, Matt Pothier beat the keeper early in the second on a pass from David Miles to give Andover a 1-0 lead. Cambridge kicked in the equalizer. With time running out, Pothier and Miles combined again to give the Raiders a 2-1 victory. BOW: A.J. Boutin, Mark Angelos, Ryan O'Leary and Mike DeMartino.

Andover Sting 5 - Danvers (Essex) 0

Bob Hughes set the tone by blasting in a long shot early in the lopsided contest. Bill Martin, Paul Anderson and Tony Cioffi added single tallies to make it 4-0 at the midway point; earning assists were Hughes and Martin. Midway through the second half, Hughes beat the keeper off a fine pass from Mick Schallap and the Sting closed their season with a 5-0 victory over Danvers. BOW: The entire team for a great effort.

Andover Strikers 1 - Swampscott 1

Swampscott took the lead when they scored on a corner kick early in the first half. Midway through the second half, after many scoring attempts by the Strikers, Dainia Gammon blasted in the equalizer off an excellent pass from Shay Cassily to make it a hard-fought 1-1 tie. BOW: Micaela Corkery, Kathleen Radulski and Michelle Meli.

Andover Whirlwinds 7

Andover Thunderbolts 0

With only seven players on hand, the Thun-derbolts had a tough time when they competed against the Whirlwinds who were anxious to close the season undefeated. Christina Loukatos scored what proved to be the winning goal early in the contest. Vicki Meli, Loukatos and Kim Anderson made it 4-0 at the midway point. The Thunderbolts' many attempts to score were denied and Liza DiClemente, Cara Aappala and Pam Boucher kicked in single tallies in the second half to give the Whirlwinds a 7-0 victory and their undefeated season; assisting on the second half tallies were Anderson, Eva Derba and Zapala. BOW: Coaches Cia Arthur and Tom Boucher (Whirlwinds) and Jeanine Meckel, Laurie Rittershaus, Trina Picardi and Aparaj Sharma (Thunderbolts).

Under 14 Division

Andover Cyclones 0

Dedham (G.B.Y.S.) 2

A spirited team from Dedham played aggressively and ultimately won the hard-fought victory by breaking through the defense in the first half for a 1-0 lead and kicking in a high shot over the keeper's outstretched hands in the second. BOW: Darlene Prochniak, Jennifer Butt and Leanna Mills.

Andover Cobras 4 - Billerica (Middx) 0

Andover Cobras 0 - Concord 0

Jodi Saunders kicked in what proved to be the game winner early in the first half against Billerica on passes from Wendy Germain and Caitlin Callahan. Suzanne Giannelly beat the keeper twice on passes from Saunders, Michelle DiStefano, Bridget Murphy and Erin Lynch to make it 3-0 at the halfway point. Billerica's many attempts to deny the shutout were thwarted by good defense in the second half and Andrea Duffy beat the keeper on passes from Nicole Ricci and Brenna Cronin to give the Cobras a satisfying 4-0 victory. BOW: Erica Goetze, Lynn Baker

Sailing

The Community Boating Program, in conjunction with the Greater Lawrence Chapter of the American Red Cross, is offering a sailing instructor course beginning June 18 at the Red Cross Chapter. The course is open to anyone who has passed the basic sailing one and two or the equivalent and who is 17 years of age. All those interested may contact the Red Cross, 430 North Canal St., Lawrence.

and Elizabeth Hanson.

The Cobras missed many scoring opportunities in their match with Concord, including a penalty shot and a direct kick. Nonetheless, good defense held the competition scoreless and the game ended in a hard-fought 0-0 tie, keeping the Cobras hope alive of capturing the Middlesex League title. BOW: Baker, Kathy Doran and Goetze.

American Little League Majors

Orioles 3 - Indians 1

Oriole outfielders Brian Workman and Shad Flaig were the hitting stars while Chethan Harish and Paul Durant limited the Indians to one hit in a 3-1 Oriole victory.

The Indians led 1-0 after three innings, courtesy of a passed ball. Adam Goddess led off the Oriole fourth with a single and scored on a base hit by Ron Rygwalski. Workman singled to score Rygwalski for a 2-1 lead. The Orioles added an insurance run in the sixth when Workman singled and came all the way around on a triple by Flaig.

The Indians' Matt Reghetto pitched shutout ball during his three-inning stint. The Orioles' Harish allowed an unearned run and only one base hit, a line drive double by Mike Daley. Durant, credited with the win, threw a no-hitter in his three innings.

Rodd Malitsky made a great running catch of an Indian popup from his shortstop position. Oriole second baseman Chad Bowman played his usual steady game to include throwing out a runner at first after a stab in back of second. Harish had four assists and Durant, three. Rygwalski, Orioles' first baseman, had 11 putouts. Catchers Goddess (Orioles) and Mark Hopkinson (Indians) called excellent games. Indian centerfielder Mark Baker made a nice catch of a sinking line drive as did his teammate rightfielder Bobby Daley.

Other Orioles' base hits were by Malitsky, Harish (2) and Durant.

White Sox 7 - Orioles 6

The White Sox squeaked by the Orioles 7-6.

Bob Sheehan, Mike Famiglietti and Scott Eggert shared the mound duties for the White Sox. After a scoreless first inning, the Orioles, aided by five walks, pushed across four runs. The White Sox retaliated in their half of the inning with five runs to take the lead. Getting timely hits were Famiglietti, Steve Marchlik, Brian Croteau and Aaron Lang. The Orioles knotted the score in the top of the third on a single by Rygwalski. Timely hitting and good base running by Eggert and Famiglietti gave the Sox a 7-5 lead after four innings.

With two outs and no one on in the top of the sixth, the Orioles rallied behind John Dwight and Shawn Garrity. When the dust cleared, the score was 7-6 with the tying run on third. Eggert came in and secured the win.

Offensive leaders for the White Sox were Famiglietti (3 hits, 3 RBIs), Croteau, Lang, Marchlik and Sheehan. Defensive standouts were Ed Jurdi, Jim Ofria, Sheehan and Eggert. Orioles' standouts were Dwight, Garrity, Rygwalski and Chathan Harish.

White Sox 5 - Twins 4

With a dramatic come-from-behind rally, the White Sox edged the Twins. Scott Eggert, Mike Famiglietti and Kevin Murphy combined on a three-hitter to go along with nine strikeouts.

The Twins scored single markers in the first and second innings to go up by 2-0. A pair of singles by John Milello and Famiglietti, along with a long double by Murphy knotted the score at two apiece.

Bob Sheehan's RBI single in the fourth gave the Sox their first lead. Good running by the Twins and shaky fielding by the Sox allowed the Twins to regain the lead 4-3 after four innings.

The Sox found themselves in the sixth with two out, a man on second and down a run. Sheehan was intentionally walked and Murphy responded by ripping a single up the middle to score both runners. Murphy sealed the win by striking out the side in the bottom of the sixth.

Offensive stars for the Sox were Murphy (two hits) Melillo, Famiglietti, Sheehan, Brian Croteau and Colin Arsenault. Eggert and DeBenedictis made good defensive plays.

Twins standouts were Paul Lisiak, Greg Poor and Todd Cadigan.

Soccer Scholarships Awarded

Andover Soccer Boosters recently announced the winners of their annual scholarship. The awards are given each year to the boy and girl who have earned a varsity soccer letter for general all-round soccer play and individual dedication to the team and sport.

The recipient for the girls' award is Torrie Fitzpatrick. She was a varsity letter winner for four years, where she played left wing forward. In her senior year she was chosen for the Eastern Mass. Division I second team, the Eagle Tribune player of the year and the most valuable A.H.S. offensive player. Torrie holds the record for the most goals and most assists in a career and as the leading scorer for the season. She indicated that she "had the opportunity to travel and to meet many people as a result of soccer....I shall never forget the friendships I have made, they will be everlasting."

The boys' award will be divided between David Bartle and Bob Pothier.

David was the captain this year and has been a member of the varsity team for three years. He was the goalkeeper for two years and starting sweeper for the third year. David was chosen for the league all-star team and participated in many extracurricular activities. He said that "playing soccer has been my most rewarding activity. I have learned something different each year I have played." He feels strongly that sports have helped him academically and the lessons learned on the field can be applied to the classroom. David said, "I feel that I would be far less of a person if I had not had the opportunity to play on the soccer team. It essentially 'made' my high school years."

Bob was the vrsity goalkeeper for the last two years. In his senior year he was chosen for the Merrimack Valley All-Star team and was the Eagle Tribune All Star. Bob had the lowest goals-against in the league and the second lowest in eastern Massachusetts. He is very active in other sports as well as a variety of extracurricular activities. Bob feels that "soccer has taught me a lesson about real life that I would not be able to learn in the classroom." He indicated that through sports, especially soccer, he has learned about himself, his strengths, weaknesses and it helped develop his character. "I have simply never been more proud of anything in my whole life."

Help Needed

"Blood is needed by patients every day, but during the summer the supply is particularly difficult to maintain," says Clara Borges, director of Donor Resources Development, American Red Cross Blood Services - Northeast Region. "Schools are closed for the summer and many regular blood donors are on vacation."

According to Borges, 25 percent of the blood collected in Massachusetts and Maine comes from high school and college students. "This is why it is so important for students to continue to donate blood at Red Cross donor centers or community drives when school is closed."

Anyone who is in good health, 18 years of age or older (17 years old with a signed American Red Cross parental/guardian consent form), weighs at least 110 pounds and has never had hepatitis may be eligible to donate blood.

Kitchen Design

by David A. Clement, Designer

REMODELING FOR YOURSELF

The average family spends approximately the same amount of money for a kitchen remodeling as it does for a car. The amount one should spend depends upon whether one expects to remain indefinitely in the present home. Or is a move contemplated within five years? If there is no such move in the immediate future, it is worth going all out to create a showcase kitchen. The kitchen should be one that you will be proud of and one that will fulfill the needs of your family. The same is true of adding or remodeling a bathroom. If, on the other hand, the purpose is to make the home more saleable, the National Kitchen and Bath Association recommends that the kitchen not be upgraded beyond the neighborhood level.

Enjoy your home while you're living in it by coming to WINDSOR

KITCHENS. We have cabinets to suit every kitchen we remodel. There's no need to go with standard groupings of cabinets when we can design a kitchen to suit your every need. You'll see that our years of experience provides you with quality workmanship at very competitive prices. Stop in to 1181 Boston Rd., Ward Hill, 9:00-5:30 Daily; Wed. 9-8; Sat. 10-3. Tel. 372-3444.

United Fund Helps Community

The Merrimack Valley United Fund does not just allocate funds once a year, but is a year-round community problem solver. This has been evidenced by some happenings at the fund over the past couple of months.

The fund recently paid for $7,130 worth of medical equipment for a Valley resident employed at an area company. Without this equipment, the individual would not have been able to keep a job. Through the help of the fund, this person will continue to be a productive member of society instead of a burden to it.

Three new agencies have joined the fund: Alternative House, Lowell; Rape Crisis Services of Greater Lowell; and Woman's Crisis Center, Newburyport. A special one-time grant of up to $50,000 was given to the Professional Center for Handicapped Children, Inc., Andover. The grant will assist the agency in moving to a larger facility where they will be able to expand their programs. One hundred and thirty-two children, from birth to seven years of age, receive services from this agency.

At a recent meeting of the United Fund board of directors the following items were discussed:

Representatives from the fund recently met with the American Heart Association to discuss the possibility of the Massachusetts Heart Association joining the fund. The committee recommended that a grant of $105,000 dollars be allocated to the Associations Mass. Chapter, effective July 1, 1987. The funds would be distributed on a monthly basis and the commitment is for one-year. Further commitment would be renegotiated in the spring of 1987. It is anticipated that the Heart Association will not accept the fund's offer.

Elkin McCallum, building committee chairman, announced that Joan Fabrics, Lowell, has donated the time of an engineer, Jamie Coombs, to serve as a clerk of the works one and a half days per week and oversee building repairs.

Twenty-one agencies submitted special funding projects totaling $290,000 on or before the May 16 deadline. A letter was sent to non-member agencies informing them of the opportunity to submit a special funding project. These projects are due June 13.

The following budget committee recommendations were made and approved:

It has been proposed that the Greater Lawrence Association for Retarded Citizens become affiliated with the Lawrence Rehabilitation Services Center. The agency will maintain autonomy, operate as an entity and provide social and recreational activities for the retarded being serviced by the agency. Representatives from the agency have agreed to the proposal.

Lawrence Mental Health was granted $10,000 to which the Department of Social Services will contribute a matching $30,000. The money will be used to implement a preventive service program for families who may abuse their children.

Lowell Retarded Citizens was granted a supplemental allocation of $10,527 for the day activities program, residential program and equipment.

A total of $14,877 was granted to the Lowell YWCA, Billerica Boys' Club and Newburyport YWCA to replace pool covers.

Emergency Response System Available To Patients

Emergency assistance at the touch of a button is now available to elderly Lawrence General Hospital patients who live alone through a special arrangement with Home-Care, Inc., a subsidiary of the Visiting Nurse Association of Greater Lawrence.

LGH patients can acquire the "Voice of Help," today's most advanced, two-way, personal emergency response system, at a special rate through the hospital's social service department.

United Fund

Richard F. Barney, general campaign chairman, gave a report on the 1986-87 campaign so far. Innovations are: the loaned executive program, key accounts where the potential of the accounts has not been realized, and a campaign advisory committee in each community to help organize the personnel structure of the campaign and deal with problems needing attention.

Laurie A. Messina, public relations director, reported on the gifts in kind program, a nationwide program developed by United Way of America whereby companies make products available to local United Ways through the National United Way organization.

The Merrimack Valley United Fund received 40 Electrolux vacuum cleaners for the second time. These cleaners were in great demand by the agencies and will be distributed to them.

3M copiers were made available, but only one United Fund agency availed itself of the opportunity to acquire one. Four non-United Fund agencies took advantage of the offer.

Industrial cleaning supplies from Economics Laboratory will be made available to the 32 agencies owning buildings. Twenty-one of these agencies will participate in the program.

Liaison reports were made by Leslie Thomas and Nancy Donahue. Thomas reported on her visit to the Lowell Girls Club which recently underwent major renovations. The agency is in the process of rebuilding programs. Thomas felt the agency was efficiently managed and doing a tremendous job. Donahue, reporting on her visit to the Lowell Visiting Nurse Association, stated that the board and executive director run a very efficient agency and provide excellent service to the community.

The Voice of Help provides an elderly person living alone with 24-hour coverage through the telephone. It doesn't require dialing and it works if the phone is off the hook.

"It's really a safety issue for elderly people living alone," explains Stephen Burke, director of social services at LGH. "This service assures them of contact with someone in case of an emergency."

The Voice of Help operates through a light-weight, half-dollar-size emergency activator button that can be worn around the neck or on the wrist. A person can just touch the button when help is needed.

An emergency signal is instantly transmitted to the Voice of Help's central switchboard. Operators trained in emergency procedures respond to the signal in seconds. The person's name and individual emergency information flash on a computer screen in front of the operator.

While the system works through the telephone, the activator button has a three-room range so a person does not have to be in the same room as the telephone to speak to the Voice of Help operator. Even if the person is unable to speak, appropriate emergency aid will be dispatched immediately.

Made by American Medical Alert Corporation, Voice of Help is distributed in the Merrimack Valley through the VNA of Greater Lawrence.

Medicare Hospice Program Sparks Increase In Patient Load

Visiting Nurse Association HomeCare treated nearly 190 patients in the first six months of certification by Medicare of its Hospice Program, Executive Director Anita D. Freeman announced. VNA HomeCare's program is the first and only such certification awarded for Hospice care of the terminally-ill in northeast Massachusetts.

"This record number is nearly 200 percent more than our Hospice program treated during the entire previous 12-month period," Freeman said. "It reflects recognition of the high standards and comprehensive range of services which Medicare Hospice certification requires." VNA HomeCare provides health care services for the Lawrence-Haverhill Metropolitan Area community, including southern New Hampshire and eastern Merrimack Valley.

Freeman said, "Data from the Merrimack Valley Health Planning Council tells us that the increase in Hospice patients, while dramatic, is only a fraction of the need in this region."

She noted that Medicare Hospice insurance benefits are available to persons age 65 and over and others who are seriously disabled. Medicare coverage significantly offsets the often debilitating costs for care, home treatment, hospital respite, medication, therapy and family counselling.

Freeman urged physicians and other health providers treating terminally ill patients to urge them or their families to contact VNA HomeCare's Hospice division.

"This area's 60 and over population totals some 37,000; this group alone accounts for nearly 80 percent of the estimated 830 cancer deaths which occur annually," she noted. "Many are already receiving Medicare benefits, but they still don't know about the certified Hospice benefits program offered by VNA HomeCare exclusively in this area."

"You have only to witness the tremendous emotional distress and financial impact on patients and families who must deal with terminal illness to know the importance of relieving their plight."

VNA HomeCare's Medicare Hospice certification covers nursing, physical therapy, speech therapy, medical social work, drugs for pain management and symptom control, homemaker services, home health aides, nutrition counselling and chaplain services.

Freeman added, "In addition, VNA HomeCare's trained and supervised Hospice volunteers provide on-going patient and family support. The program includes a touchstone group for families living with a life-threatening illness and a lifeline group for those who have experienced loss."

VNA HomeCare, with centers in North Andover and Haverhill, has earned the support of the Merrimack Valley United Fund for its service to the community. Its programs, services and standards have received professional certification and community recognition for nearly a century of innovative, concerned response at every level of health care need.

Directory Assistance Calls To Be Charged

Effective July 1, New England Telephone's business customers in Massachusetts will be charged for calls to directory assistance when they make heavy use of the service.

Residence customers are not affected by the charge, which goes into effect under tariffs filed with the state Department of Public Utilities. The filing complies with a DPU order issued last year.

Currently, Massachusetts is one of only three states in the 48 continental states that do not have directory assistance charging plans. There are charges for directory assistance in other states served by New England Telephone.

John J. Coleman, New England Telephone vice president-Massachusetts, said the plan will require heavy users of directory assistance service to pay a greater share of the costs associated with providing the service.

He said directory assistance operators in Massachusetts last year processed almost 270 million calls at a cost to the company, and, therefore, customers, of nearly $70 million.

"All of our customers in Massachusetts share the cost of directory assistance service in their basic monthly rates, regardless of how little they use the service," Coleman said.

"Today's filing will enable us to shift more of the directory assistance costs to those business customers who use the service the most and will help to control this expense that all customers bear in their basic rates.

"We believe it's only fair that customers who make frequent use of directory assistance should pay more of the cost to provide the service."

Each business line will have a monthly allowance of 10 calls to directory assistance. The charge for calls in excess of the allowance will be 35 cents per call for direct-dialed calls and 50 cents for operator-handled calls to directory assistance.

The plan will require the company to reduce business customers' basic charges to help offset any revenue increase resulting from directory assistance charging. About two thirds of the business customer lines in the state will see a monthly decrease of about $1.70.

Coleman said, "On average, about 35 percent of business customers do not make calls to directory assistance and an additional 45 percent make fewer than 10 calls per month.

"Those who will be impacted by the plan, however, are the remaining 20 percent of business customers who make more than 10 calls per month, including those who make as many as several thousand calls per month on a regular basis."

In addition to residence customers, coin telephone users, handicapped business customers and state and local governmental agencies also will be exempt from directory assistance charging.

State law prohibits the DPU from approving a charging plan for residence customers.

Taxes Due

The second installment of estimated federal tax payments on 1986 individual income is due by June 16, because the 15th falls on a weekend, John D. Johnson, district director of IRS in Massachusetts, said.

"This installment should be paid by using declaration voucher 2 found in the Form 1040-ES package, 'Declaration of Estimated Tax for Individuals,' Johnson added.

Taxpayers whose anticipated income changed during 1985 may have to file an amended declaration. Space is provided in the estimated tax package to compute an amended estimate.

Taxpayers should be aware that the penalty for underpayment of estimated tax is now 10 percent.

Northeast Speech & Hearing Center

Northeast Speech & Hearing Center is pleased to announce an open house on Wednesday, June 18, from 10-2 in N. Andover, and on Friday, June 20, from 9-1 in Haverhill. At this time free hearing and speech tests will be given. If you have a problem with your hearing or speech, or if you suspect you have a problem, come get a free test and find out for sure.

Northeast Speech & Hearing Center is a private practice composed of three audiologists and two speech and language pathologists. All five specialists have masters degrees in audiology or speech and language pathology and are licensed by the American Speech Language and Hearing Association. In the Audiology department Mary Ann Brockway, Denise Leblanc and Janey Sherman work with a client to determine, first, if there is a hearing impairment, and then what type of therapy should be used. Therapy can involve the use of a hearing aid, communication training—such as how to be a good listener—or a medical referral.

The Audiologist works closely with medical doctors. Often a physician refers a patient to an audiologist for hearing tests. The audiologist also sends clients to the physician to determine if there is any reason why a hearing aid would not function properly, or if surgery could correct a problem.

In the Speech and Language department, Margaret Read and Judith Heerlein test clients for speech and language disorders. Clients' ages range from 2 to 92. With young children the test is administered with verbal instructions, toys, and illustrated cards. Older clients are given more formal written and verbal tests. Margaret and Judith deal with a whole spectrum of language and speech problems, from stuttering to cleft palate, to vocal cord removal that requires the use of an artificial larynx.

Northeast Speech and Hearing Center is open from 9-5. They are located on 198 Mass. Ave., N. Andover (688-6491). They also have offices on 288 Groveland St., Haverhill (373-2202) and 23 Stiles Rd. Salem N.H. (688-6491).

BUSINESS PROFILESAutograph Records: Share a Piece of the Rock

Who's the "boss" at Autograph Records? If you answered Bruce Springsteen you'd be wrong, although you'll find him there also among the tapes and records. The real boss at Autograph Records is Eric Fredrickson, an Andover native whose youth is a decided asset in his first business venture.

Located at 2 Post Office Ave., Autograph Records presently caters its broad spectrum of rock music and music related articles to the teenage/collegiate audience. Don't despair if you're over 25, Autograph is a growing business, and Eric is building his inventory gradually to appeal to a wider range of customers.

Open the door to Autograph Records and experience a symphony of color and sound. Unique posters imported from Europe span the walls and ceiling, but don't let them distract you from the heart of Autograph: the music. Browse through Choose records, tapes, compact discs and picture discs. Offered for your purchase are anti-Top 40 hits, alternative WFNX related music as well as the Top 40 Chart hit music.

Collectors will enjoy the "Rare" and "Out of Print" sections featuring LP's from the 60's and 70's. Having trouble finding imports, local bands, or Heavy Metal imports? Come to Autograph where the unusual becomes commonplace.

Autograph offers concert t-shirts, custom t-shirts printed with almost anything, cool shades, rock banners and Rocky Horror Picture Show jewelry. You'll choose from 75 posters including oversize posters from Europe and 4 ft x 6 ft rock posters.

Visit Autograph on Saturdays where special guests have been known to surface. Visiting artists include Face to Face, Eric Hafner from the Lines, and Boston's own Del Fuego's who've been featured in Miller Beer ads. Autograph boasts a giant wall covered with signatures of special guests and customers. They'd love you to come in and sign it as well.

Let the music take you to a place you've never been before. Come to Autograph Records where your listening is their pleasure. Mon.-Sat. 10-7, Sun. 1-5. 475-8948.

Introducing the Hawkswood Estate at Point Shore:

For those with a dream, and about $350,000 to spend for it.

When finished, there will be just 18 units here on this magnificent 10-acre peninsula overlooking the steep banks and broad flow of one of New England's great rivers.

Quite emphatically, these dwellings are not the typical "condo," the smallish place one settles for when his "real" home becomes too much of a bother. No, these are spacious 2,500 to 3,500 square foot units—elegant, spacious, secure, and private.

Very, very private.

You may look upon Hawkswood as a vacation home that you're fortunate enough to live in permanently.

Or as one of the last remaining gracious, environmentally responsible havens within the North Shore, yet only minutes from downtown Newburyport.

Or as a moderately expensive inducement to get the children to visit.

At any rate, if you're prepared to fulfill a slightly immodest dream, we should be happy to show you this splendid concept.

For an appointment to view the few remaining luxury residences phone our marketing director, Debra Tomaszewski, at (617) 388-1104 or view daily from 10:00-4:00 pm; weekends 10:00-6:00 pm.

THE HAWKSWOOD ESTATE AT

Point Shore

Developed, constructed and marketed by The Development & Marketing Group.
To Amesbury from Boston take Rte 95 North to Rte 110 West exit make a left turn at the first set of traffic lights onto Clarks Road. Proceed straight until Clarks Road ends and make a left onto Main. Look for signs on right to the Hawkswood entrance (approximately ¼ mile down the street).

Real Estate

By DOUGLAS N. HOWE

REALTOR

MORTGAGES CAN HELP

Mortgages are the most common way to finance the purchase of a home. Using mortgage financing can mean the difference in owner equity in a home and owning nothing but rent receipts.

People often refer to "paying the mortgage", but actually it isn't the mortgage that is being paid, but rather the promissory note which is secured by the mortgage. In other words, when you give the lender a mortgage you are using your real estate as collateral to guarantee that you will repay the loan as promised.

By the use of mortgage financing many people who would not otherwise be able to afford to purchase their own home may become proud homeowners. Also with mortgage financing you have a deed - in your name - to the property: it belongs to you and no one else. In addition, the interest you pay is tax deductible. Rent payments aren't.

Real estate professionals are experts in helping to arrange mortgage financing for prospective homeowners.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at THE HOWE AGENCY, 4 Peachard Ave., Andover. Phone: 475-5100. We're here to help.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINES

By Ann Campbell G.R.I.
Realty U.S.A.
Schrüender Real Estate

TAX SAVINGS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Buying a home is a good idea for a number of reasons, and one of the most important is tax savings.

At first glance, it may look like the monthly costs for your mortgage and taxes are much higher than the rent for a comparable home.

If, for example, you're planning to buy a home with a 70,000 mortgage at 11½ percent and annual taxes of 1200, your monthly cost would be approximately 793.00. The good news comes when you consider your tax bracket and calculate the amount you save each month. During the early years of your loan, almost all of the mortgage payment and all of your local real estate taxes can be deducted on your state and federal returns. If, for example, you're in the 30 percent bracket, you can save about 230 each month, bringing your net monthly housing bill to 563.

Furthermore, when you own a home these monthly expenses remain relatively stable. You'll never again have to worry about inevitable rent increases.

If you would like a personalized home buyer's analysis to show your potential tax savings on a new home purchase, contact the professionals at Realty USA, Schrüender Real Estate. Give us a call at 685-5000, or stop by our offices at 73 Chickering Road, North Andover.

Pupil Survey Project Shows Majority For Seat Belt Law

An overwhelming 71.57 percent of Andover citizens polled in a recent computer-correlated survey, taken by local experts, favor the Seat Belt Law.

Furthermore, the study revealed that most of those who do not favor the law oppose it because they feel it constitutes unnecessary government intrusion into their private lives.

The survey results were disclosed last Tuesday night by five members of the team that had investigated the question. Using visual aids that included bar and pie graphs and organizational charts, Noah Caruso, Amanda Nichols, John Melillo, Susan Abramson and Minh Nguyen presented their team's conclusions to an appreciative audience of parents, school committee members and town school officials at a meeting of the Andover School Committee.

The young presentors and their teammates, all students of the town's elementary schools, had worked on the survey as part of a collaborative project headed by West teacher, Charlotte Lynch, and taught by Tom Ciaccia of Bell Laboratories. Lynch told the audience that the project attempted to provide a vehicle for the practical application of math and social study skills, bring the relevance of the computer to the classroom, and provide a forum for outstanding students from the four schools to work together.

The presentation also featured a videotaped view of the students and mentor Ciaccia at the computer keyboards. Through this exercise in electronic eavesdropping, audience members could clearly see that the team members both knew their bits and bytes, and found their work exhilarating.

Minh Nguyen, a Sanborn student, concluded the program on a personal note by summarizing the collective opinion of the young experts who had undertaken the study: "The majority of us would like to recommend that you wear your seat belts," he said.

Fourth Observance Planned

As the Fourth of July quickly approaches, Andover's Committee for Patriotic Observances is once again planning an old-fashioned celebration for the community.

This year's day begins with a pancake breakfast in the park, followed by the traditional Horribles' Parade which will again include awards for a variety of categories ranging from Most Horrible to Best Bicycle to the Peter Anderson Award.

The day's events, including games and Simon Sez, will be capped off with an open-air concert in the park by the Middlesex Concert Band.

385 Receive Diplomas At 127th Commencement Exercises

By Susan K. O'Neill

Class President William J. Dalton, Jr., delivers welcoming address at Andover High commencement exercises.

A few transparent clouds streaked the blue sky over Andover High School's Eugene V. Lovely field as the class of 1986 filed into the rows of folding chairs. There were 385 of them, robust-looking young men and women, faces flushed pink—with excitement, perhaps, or with the warmth of the spring afternoon—beneath their dark mortarboard hats.

In the stands, friends and family members jockeyed for a good view. Arms waved; whistles pierced the air—some from people who appeared deceptively dignified for their two-fingers-to-the-mouth techniques. Small children squirmed, tugging at the ties and ruffles of their Sunday best outfits.

As the microphones turned gusty breezes to thunder, punctuating the band's processional, they sat—blue-gowned seniors, waiting for the magic of tradition to transform them into graduates.

Last Wednesday's Andover High School 127th Commencement Exercises, a smooth, nearly two-hour ritual that divided its time almost equally between program and the vital business of passing out diplomas, was a true hometown celebration of passage. The featured speaker, attorney, selectman and newspaper columnist William Dalton, Sr., was both a graduate of Andover High School and the father of this year's senior class president. In addition, two of the town's school committee members had the honor of presenting diplomas to their own daughters.

But primarily—and appropriately—this day, June 4, 1986, belonged to the class of '86. They took charge gracefully: from Kristen Duffy and Jo Burkholder, who directed the band and the choir, respectively; to class vice president Brian Norris, who led the salute to the flag; to Karin Mesler and Jun Paek, whose strong voices lent power to the hymn "America"; to the many presentors and speakers from the graduating class. Together, they carried the ceremony with dignity, propriety and, in many cases, a wry wit.

Class president William Dalton, Jr., welcomed the audience and participants. Dalton commended the school for giving his class "a foundation upon which to build the future." He also praised his class for its leadership abilities, noting that the student government had left the high school a constitution—"something to remember us by."

Upon entering high school, he said, students confront "fear in thoughts of the future—fear of the unknown; the uncertain...What if I can't find my class? What if a big, bad senior steps on my face and eats me for lunch?" He commended the faculty for helping to reduce many anxieties students face. As for those that remain, Dalton said, "As we move into our future, our education has taught us that these fears are not a deterrent, but a challenge."

For the two young speakers who followed Dalton at the podium, the anxiety of entering a new way of life had been especially poignant. Karin Beitler, an American Field Service exchange student from Austria, presented a miniature version of her country's flag to the school's principal, Mary Athey Jennings, with the words, "It was a great year. It hasn't been easy at times, but I have enjoyed it."

The next speaker, Jeannette Molina, came to Andover three years ago from Queens, N.Y. A participant in the A.B.C. (A Better Chance) program, which brings talented inner-city students into more college-oriented suburban schools, Molina was a member of the National Honor Society and had earned Honors every semester of her three years at Andover High School.

Molina thanked the program's staff and supporters for their efforts, time, financial aid and good wishes. Speaking for herself and her two fellow A.B.C. classmates, she said, "We have learned much in our stay here, and we hope that, in return, we leave you with something of value."

In the spirit of tradition, Salutatorian Mark Marmer, class secretary/treasurer, then presented the school with a gift from the class of '86: a rubber link mat, 19 feet long and eight feet wide, to be placed in the school's entryway. He described it: navy blue, embossed with a picture of a warrior and the words, "Andover High School Golden Warriors." He added that it would be delivered in five weeks or less, "making us the fastest class ever to have our gift arrive."

Principal Jennings thanked Marmer. "Your class always said it was going to clean up the school," she quipped. "This is a positive step toward doing that...Thank you, Mark, for putting out the welcome mat."

Gillian Mahon, winner of the 1986 Goldsmith Award for excellence in writing and public speaking—given each year in memory of William Goldsmith, the first principal of Punchard High School—gave the class essay. The text of her address, "A Step Toward Tomorrow," appears elsewhere in this edition.

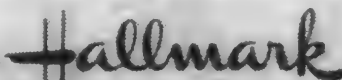

Having duly commanded their parts in the ceremony, the graduates and their representatives then stepped aside and welcomed a speaker who had worn his own Andover High School cap and gown in 1961.

Commencement

In introducing William Dalton to the assembly, School Superintendent Kenneth Seifert called him a "home-grown" Andoverite and the author of "an almost best seller called 'The Local Touch'." Dalton, he said, was "the Mark Twain of Andover."

Settled behind the podium, Dalton expressed amusement about Seifert's allusion to his being "home-grown." "That's like a turnip, isn't it?" he asked.

He also informed the audience that he had good news and bad news. "The good news is, I have never made a speech that was more than 10 minutes long," he said. "The bad news," he added, "is that this is the exception."

In his address, Dalton speculated on the many sources of happiness and unhappiness to be found in life after graduation.

He spoke of marriage, which he called "the most significant decision of your life," as spelling unhappiness for about half the people who enter it today—and great happiness for those who are willing to work at it. He urged the graduates to support their own future children as fully as they could.

Dalton spoke of expectations, realistic and unrealistic, dryly alluding to the panic that the West Junior High School motto "Excellence in Everything," embossed over the school's door, could incite in a new student.

In his own school career, he said, he found out that there were a number of subjects in which he would never be excellent—such as geology, a course he studied briefly during his years at the University of New Hampshire.

In a lab, he recalled, his professor once asked him to identify a small, dark rock. Unable to think of the specimen's proper name, Dalton said that he answered, "It's a small, dark rock." The professor later rewarded his lapse in excellence with one of the lowest grades he had given in a geology lab, he said.

He urged the class to strive for excellence, not in everything, but in the things they did well—and to realize that sometimes they were going to fail.

Concerning their future employment, Dalton urged the graduates not to allow life to trap them in a job they do not like. If you find you don't like what you've chosen, he told them, it is never too late to change.

Also, said Dalton, money and the goods it brings "are toys. Don't be disappointed when they don't give you happiness," he said. "Happiness comes from somewhere else."

Dalton cited the unhappiness to be found in sabotaging one's own health with alcohol, drugs, smoking and overeating. He also spoke about the value of learning from the experience of others—but strictly as a starting point for developing one's own experience.

As a plane circled overhead, pulling behind it the message "Happy graduation, Lissa. Love always, Tom," Dalton concluded with a quotation from Shakespeare's "Hamlet": "This above all else, to thine own self be true..." He urged his young audience to use their intellects to find and follow the truth—which would make it impossible to be false to others.

Afterwards, Principal Jennings presented the new graduates who, she said, "today become part of the history and tradition of Andover High School." Lead by Class Marshals Susan Sofia (valedictorian) and Mark Marmer (salutatorian), the graduates marched to the podium as Christine Scanlon and Lawrence Aiello, Jr., announced their names.

Parents, their shoulders criss-crossed with straps attached to cameras of every description, from pocket models to videotape machines, crowded the fence surrounding the field. They edged in, dropped to their knees, or stood on tip-toe, poised to preserve the moment when a son or a daughter reached out to take his or her diploma from the hand of a school committee member.

Each name was met with with fervent applause—and some, with whoops and earsplitting whistles. "Look—her dad gave her her diploma," remarked a woman in the stands, as Mary Robb hugged her school committee presenter, Donald Robb. In turn, Cheryl Giammusso received her own diploma—and hug—from her father, Chairman Michael Giammusso.

When, at last, each of the new graduates had his or her diploma in hand and was once again seated, the Rev. Dirkje Legerstee, West Parish Church's associate minister, gave the traditional benediction. To the admonition that the Lord "give you peace," she added, "and make you peacemakers."

It was over. Pandemonium broke loose on the field, as the graduates who had, not long ago, been seniors sailed their mortarboards and cheered. Parents rushed out to meet them; small children, their shirt-tails out and their ruffles askew, were whisked along with the crowd at knee- and waist-level. A few found themselves momentarily lost. With tears and laughter, the class of 1986 were welcomed to the world beyond the first hurdle by those who had helped pull them to the other side.

A Step Toward Tomorrow

By Gillian Mahon

Class Essayist Gillian Mahon addresses graduates, parents and friends

It's finally here, the day we've all been waiting for. We have been coached, taught and inspired to reach our graduation and to make our first big step toward tomorrow.

In all those impatient years of waiting for this moment, I now realize that some of the joys in just being a carefree and uninhibited child have quickly passed me by.

As I think about our step toward tomorrow, a familiar phrase written by William Shakespeare comes to mind, "Parting is such sweet sorrow." My first feeling in taking this step is definitely sweet sorrow. Sorrow, because of what and to whom I must say goodbye. Sweet, because it is the beginning of a new era in which we are free to open our own doors while possessing such youthfulness and the awareness of our opportunities.

In many ways, all these years of school can be paralleled to a crawling infant. Now I feel as though I'm taking the first significant step toward tomorrow, because it is in my hands—what I make of it—what I decide.

This step is the beginning of many decisions, not only in how we journey toward our goals, but in discovering what part each and every one of us will play in society.

All the experiences I have had alone, and the ones we have shared as a class, I hope will lead me and my peers to doing something about the miseries in this world.

To our parents and teachers, I want to say thank you. We appreciate your love, patience and for being there to guide us, even when we didn't think we needed you.

To our parents, who have hopes and fears about whether we will make it in this world of nuclear energy and weapons, starvation and the overwhelming strife among countries—we will make it. This class of 1986, I'm sure, will do its best to improve not only our country, but those countries that need us. We are an outgoing and caring group of students, who are quick to fulfill the needs of others. We just love you too much not to care.

Thinking again of this day, I visualize Christie McCauliffe in making her decision to advance toward tomorrow. She made the choice to enter space, not only for herself, but for her family and students. What an awesome decision, because in every step there is always the risk of failure. There are no guarantees in life that our strides will be successful. The title of a book I read during junior high, "I Never Promised You a Rose Garden," captures this whole concept completely.

There is only the guarantee of that journey and how we arrive at its peak is up to us. We lost Christie in body, but not in spirit. Her courage and love of life shall live on in all our hearts.

There is no way to confine such courage. As William Blake wrote, "You cannot put courage in a silver rod."

These immense judgments, in which we are about to partake, require courage, assertiveness, knowledge, confidence, strength and support from those special people in our lives.

In order to make our lives successful, I now see we needed the past 18 years to build such qualities. Without the invaluable education we have received and the support of our families to continually attempt an understanding of our many moods and actions that can only come with the pressures, excitement, heartache and joys of adolescence, the future struggle would be almost impossible.

I sincerely hope that all of you will continue to guide us in times of confusion and question. I also hope that all of us will end together in the years to come, to make this world a better place for you. After all, you were there for us and we should be there for you. We aim to continue making you proud of who we are, what we have done and what we will do.

We have been waiting so long to solely pursue our dreams, but all this recent preparation for the future has often brought feelings of insecurity and doubt, yet a feeling of accomplishment. What we must remember—when you want a dream to last, you must take a chance.

We all have a multitude of memories from the past, but it is time to lock them inside, say goodbye and fully take our lives forward. This is just the beginning.

In closing and as my own personal farewell, I glance back with a smile at the simplicity of the first poem I ever wrote and visualize how it represents our rapid progression from our years as underclassmen:

The days go by ever so fast;
But in my mind forever they will last
I try so hard to hold on;
But somehow they are always gone
The memories shall cling to my heart;
And no matter what, they shall never part.

A Marvelous Moment For John

By Susan K. O'Neill

For years, John Garabedian has been the veritable embodiment of school spirit for Andover High School's football and basketball teams. He has been a fixture at games, cheering and leading others to cheer, joking with players and fans.

Last Wednesday night, Garabedian, a special needs student, beamed as he took his place on stage among his fellow graduates of the class of 1986 for the school's 127th commencement exercises. When his name was announced, the audience and his classmates directed their own cheers at him, for a change—the longest, loudest and most fervent applause of the evening.

Garabedian hugged the presentors with characteristic enthusiasm. Said his mother, Eileen Garabedian, after the ceremony, "He said he thought that it was 'marvelous'."

During his tenure at Andover High School, Garabedian's spirit has endeared him to classmates and teachers alike. Special Needs teacher Ann Wilde, who has taught Garabedian's classes for the past four years, calls him a hard worker who acts as the "ambassador—or P.R. 'rep'—of our class."

"He goes to all the games, to the football practices," explains quarterback Tim Perry, who also graduated last Wednesday. "Everyone just loves him, and he loves doing it."

"He's just an extremely likable kid who likes being with other kids," says Andover High School football coach Richard Collins. "The kids really appreciate him." According to Collins, Garabedian's support of his team went beyond his attendance at games and practices—where he sometimes led warmup exercises—to two football banquets, where he sang "The Star-Spangled Banner." This year, says Collins, the team presented him with a sweatshirt emblazoned "Number One Fan."

At graduation, Garabedian received certification that he has satisfied his pre-vocational Special Needs program requirements. According to his mother, he will now seek employment—possibly at an area restaurant.

Coach Collins says that he will miss the new graduate's enthusiasm at Andover High School football games, but that he anticipates that Garabedian will come back as an alumnus to cheer his old team on when he finds the time. "I hope to see him around," he says.

John Charles Garabedian hugs School Committee Chairman Michael Gaimmusso after receiving his diploma.
